

Connecticut State Police Expand their Evidence Capture Capabilities to include Panasonic Arbitrator™ Body-Worn Camera Solutions

NEWARK, NJ (August 7, 2018) – Panasonic System Solutions Company of North America, a leader in connected solutions that support law enforcement and public safety, announced today that the Connecticut State Police (CSP) has expanded its' evidence capturing capabilities by outfitting 800 state troopers with Panasonic Arbitrator™ Body Worn Cameras. The CSP have already deployed Panasonic Arbitrator In-Car Video camera systems.

“Across the country, state and local police departments are striving to build trust and foster transparency, the foundational principles of positive relationships between law enforcement agencies and the communities they serve and protect, said Dora Schriro, Commissioner of the Department of Emergency Services and Public Protection. “We believe equipping all of our troopers on patrol with body-worn cameras equipment will contribute to our conversations with everyone we encounter, strengthen troopers’ relationships with their communities, and through the feedback that the cameras provide, support and sustain our steadfast commitment towards continuous improvement.”

“The Connecticut State Police has been a customer for over ten years, and we are pleased that after an extensive evaluation and several field pilots of body worn cameras, they chose Panasonic for the second phase of their program,” said Paul Bazzano, Director, Panasonic Systems Communications Company of North America. “Panasonic is dedicated to supporting the Connecticut State Police by providing a highly reliable evidence capture solution to improve officer safety, and to expand their evidence capture program statewide.”
